RosettaStone: No Longer Just Family

Allen Grant Stoltzfus '65 thought learning a foreign language could be made much easier using software developed for that purpose. He partnered with brother-in-law John Fairfield '70 to develop a prototype, with John doing the programming. Allen's brother Eugene '72 joined them in January 1992 to found Fairfield Language Technologies, now known as Rosetta Stone. Seed money was provided by Allen and Eugene's mother, Ruth Brunk Stoltzfus '37. Sisters/attorneys Kathryn Stoltzfus Fairfield '70 and Ruth Stoltzfus Jost '72 later joined the company. Another sister, Helen Stoltzfus Greenberg '78, worked for Rosetta Stone from July 2002 to September 2003, managing retail kiosks in California.

The company has grown from six local staffers in 1992 to about 400 employees in Harrisonburg, with another 500 working elsewhere in the
